"The role of a librarian is to make sense of the world of information. If that's not a qualification for superhero-dom, what is?"

~Nancy Pearl, as quoted in Seattle Times, July 10, 2003

Upcoming at WLS: Journal Article Request Service

Once a new issue of a periodical arrives at the WLS office, we will scan and distribute the table of contents via email. From there, you can request the articles you'd like to read. We'll scan and send them to you as soon as we can. That way, you can enjoy them right away, or save them for later; read them whenever! Scanned copies of articles can be shared among staff, volunteers, and board members; they are not for general distribution and circulation. We can send one scanned copy of an article per institution. We'll complete article requests as soon as possible, but please allow some leeway, in case the WLS staff is away from the office.

Journals currently available:

- ◆ American Libraries
- ◆ Booklist
- ◆ Library Journal
- ◆ School Library Journal

Simply email the WLS office at wlsasst@gmail.com with the journals you'd like to receive notifications for, and we'll put you on a email list for those publications. This service is only for libraries within the current WLS service area in western Nebraska. Policies and journal offerings are subject to change. If there is a journal you'd like to see added to the service, feel free to submit it for consideration. This will take the place of the current journal mailing rotation.

In This Issue:

- ◆ WLS Annual Meeting
- ◆ Journal Article Request Service
- ◆ Mark Your Calendar, NCompass Live and Basic Skills p. 2
- ◆ Happenings Around the System: pp. 3-10
- ◆ News You Can Use:
 - CSLP's Teen Video Challenge, Author Tour with Ben Mikaelson p. 12
 - ILA/NLA/NSL Joint Conference p. 13
 - WLS S.T.E.A.M. Equipment Information p. 17

Broadwater Public Library Blasts Through the Summer!

Broadwater Public Library has eight students participating in our Out-of-this-World "Universe of Stories" summer reading program. They are decorating rockets with jewels each week they come in, and for each book that they read. We have made Jet Packs, Astronauts and Canvas Constellations.

The Paxton Public Library is up and running. We have been closed since July 17, 2018, so it's great to get moving. We started summer reading for the month of June on Mondays and Thursdays, with around 45 in attendance.

Happenings Around the System

Morrill Public Library invaded by Martians and Aliens During Summer Reading!

Morrill Public Library Summer Readers made long-time friends when they chose their new alien buddy, stuffed him, and then wished upon the star that they included to become his heart. Sarah Alfred, Morrill Public Library Director, first read the accompanying story There's No Place Like Space! All About Our Solar System, by Dr. Seuss, to about 80 readers this summer. They also made their own paper Martian as one of their activities for "A Universe of Stories".

Summer Reading Program Teaches Children Space

The Grant County Library held their summer reading program June 3rd, 5th, 10th and 12th. The theme this year was "A Universe of Stories". The children learned about the moon, stars, planets and astronauts.

Children from ages 2 to 12 years old attended, with a total of 46 registered participants.

Monday June 3rd, the children learned about the moon. They got to make their very own moon sand, consisting of flour and baby oil. Wednesday June 5th, we learned about the stars and how they make up constellations. On Monday June 10th, we held an astronaut training camp. They experienced how tight of space the astronauts work in with a tunnel crawl, upside down writing and studying in a box. We also made astronaut pudding that they had to eat with a straw. On Wednesday June 12th, the Library Board sponsored a picnic of hot dogs, chips, cookie, Moon Pies and drinks. We played games and the children received awards and a certificate for an ice cream cone, donated by Sandhill Oil. Throughout the program, the children record how many minutes they read and those amounts are tallied. In three age divisions, the children who read the most win a new book. The winners this year were, Noah Anderson in the 10 and up division, Dillon Hebbert in the 6-9 division, and Braxton Adam in the 5 and under division. The combined total of all attendees for a two week period was 4,736 minutes. That's almost 79 hours of reading!

All children that attended this year also received a free ticket to the Nebraska State Fair. This is for the 2019 Nebraska State Fair Read & Win contest. When presented at the gate, the child will receive a coloring book, a ribbon bookmark, vendor coupons, a free kiddy ride at the carnival and an entry for the grand prize drawing.

We appreciate our volunteers for the two week program, Kleo Dredla, Lynn Vivion, Peg Finegan, Jeanne Davis, Maria Thompson, Emily Burgess, Staci Adam, Allison Ferguson, Melissa Sheets and Nancy Anderson. We could not do this without them!

Hemingford Senior Mark Plog Begins Summer Internship at Hemingford Public Library

HHS senior Mark Plog straightens books on a shelf as the new Hemingford Public Library intern. Picture provided by Kay Bakkehaug/Ledger

A new intern began working at the Hemingford Public Library last week under the supervision of Library Director Marly Pehoviack. Hemingford High School senior and soon to be 2019 HHS graduate Mark Plog began his first assignment with the Nebraska Vocational Rehabilitation program in a Work Based Learning Experience.

"I just started but so far it's nice," Plog said. He mentioned that he likes the library and really likes reading, mostly fiction. "Mark has been helping re-shelve the books and recover some books with plastic sleeves," Pehoviack said. "We cleaned some books and he went through the little kid bins and made sure the books were in the right areas."

Along with cleaning and organizing books, Plog will be assisting with the summer reading program as well as providing computer assistance to patrons as needed.

"The summer reading program should be the first full week of June and then wrap it up before July but we haven't finalized things yet," Pehoviack noted.

Mark's regular days will be Monday through Wednesday, but he can work as needed as long as he doesn't exceed 40 hours per week. The library hours are Monday 1-7 p.m., Tuesday 1-6 p.m., Wednesday 1-6 p.m., Thursday 9 a.m. to noon, Friday – closed, and Saturday 9 a.m. to noon. However there have been some inquiries lately as to why they are not open on Friday's since school gets out earlier that day so last week they were open from 1-5 p.m. Those hours will be effective May 3rd, 10th and 17th.

"We are trying out new Friday hours to see if there's a need to be open on Friday," Pehoviack said. "Things are going well here at the library," she said. "I've been trying to stay current on the new books that are coming out. I can't order all of the best sellers on the New York Times list but I can get a couple. I try to see what the patrons are checking out and what types of fiction they are reading. Seems like they've been excited to have new books."

When asked if he was excited to be graduating, Plog said, "A little bit." In the fall he will be going to LifeLink Nebraska in Scottsbluff. LifeLink provides post-secondary transition skills for 18-21 year old students with disabilities. Including employment, independent living, classroom, community involvement and WNCC classes for credit.

"We heard some exciting news," Pehoviack said. "LifeLink is part of the vocational rehabilitation in Scottsbluff and when they found out that Mark was doing his school-to-work here at the library they said if this goes well then he will be in a similar position at WNCC next year."

Plog's mom is the Special Education Director at Hemingford Public Schools, Mandy Plog. Plog has Autism and communication delay. He has been in special services since he was 2 years old. "When he was 2, Autism was not as understood as it is now, so he was diagnosed with a speech delay back then," Mandy said. "It is a hard road, but seeing Mark have successes like the library job make it all worth it!" "I think it is amazing and I think Marly is doing such a good job with him. Thank goodness our little town has that library and has a librarian willing to work with someone like Mark. I am overjoyed at how well it is going."

As plans are finalized, look for more news to come on the summer reading program that Plog will be helping with.

What's Going on at the Chadron Public Library?

In 2017, due to a lack of physical space, the Chadron Public Library Foundation donated the use of the house, which it owns next door, to the Library. The house, renamed The Annex, is currently used for some of the Library's programs and for the monthly book sale of the Friends of the Library. There is a little piece of land behind the building. After viewing a web-in-air of the Nebraska Library Commission, the Library Director, Rosella Tesch, decided to launch a new program: Gardening for Beginners. The results were encouraging, with several individuals participating in clearing and preparing the soil, pruning the shrubbery and planting the vegetables. Some individuals from the original group became more involved in the experiment, while others moved toward other projects. The vegetables harvested last year were used by the club members to create healthy meals. Under the guidance of Cathy Donohue (volunteer and library asset - she has spirited and supported many, many activities) they explored different recipes for the vegetables harvested at the end of Summer. This Spring, Jess Straw and Cathy Donohue asked to continue the gardening experience. It was a great idea. Jess, with the help of Cathy, prepared the sign that proudly declares the place under the tender, loving care of the "Ground Hogs"-the new name of this group. The Ground Hogs are up to a great start and their tomatoes are looking very good. Moreover, some whimsical little Fairies have decided to move to this little corner of green tranquility and call it home. The garden is becoming a magical place for those in search of piece, quiet and a bit of beauty.

Spotlight: Museum of the Fur Trade, est. 1949

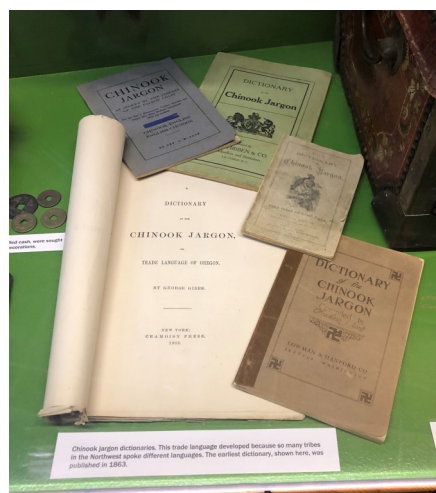

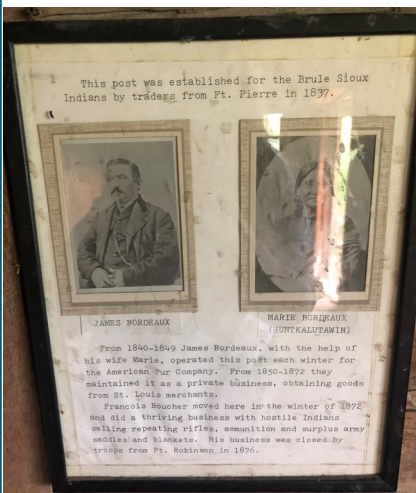

Have you ever visited the Museum of the Fur Trade? The other day I had the opportunity to take a tour through this marvelous museum, located east of Chadron, NE, at the site of the James Bordeaux's trading post. The museum grounds include the trading house and warehouse built on Bordeaux Creek in 1837.

This was an American Fur Company Post, independently operated by Missouri Frenchman James Bordeaux "the Bear" for the Sioux Indians until 1872. He was the leading supplier of illegal guns and ammunition for the Indians resisting forced relocation to reservations.

The Steerman Firearms Hall contains the largest and most complete collection of guns made specifically for Indians. The Bevin B. and Maxine Bump Exhibit Hall contains the most comprehensive collection of textiles, which were the most important class of goods traded to the American Indians. When you get a chance, a visit here is highly recommended.

CSLP's 2019 Teen Video Challenge!

summer library program™

Looking for an easy program to share with your teens? The 2019 Teen Video Challenge (TVC) sponsored by the Collaborative Summer Library Program (CSLP) has been streamlined to help make participating in this contest easier than ever!

[<https://www.cslpreads.org/programs/teen-program/2019-teen-video-challenge/>] This site contains links to the Official TVC Submission Form, the Complete Contest Rules, and winning videos from years past. Changes with this new approach to the TVC:

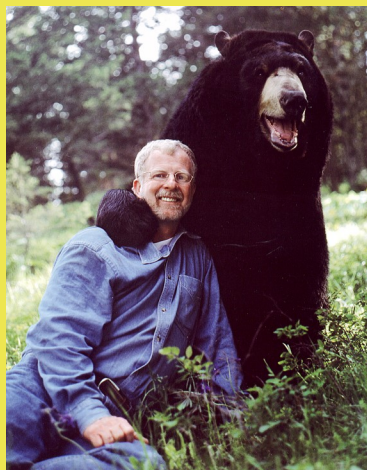

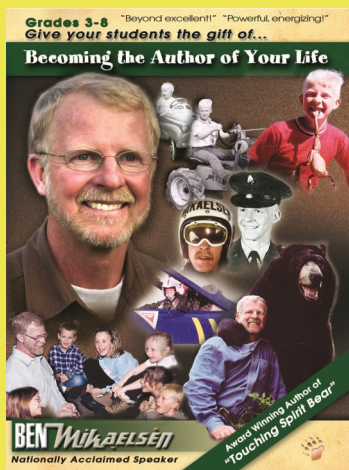

- Instead of state winners, there will be 5 national winners. Just have your teens submit a link to their video.
- The program will accept submissions June 1-Aug 2, 2019, so that you can incorporate it into your summer programs (its still a great opportunity to partner with schools with video production classes or clubs; students can produce the videos as a class project and submit them in June!)
- Videos will be limited to 60 seconds, making this a much more doable project for small teams.
- Permission and model release forms will only be required from the winning entries (completing the forms is a requirement to receive prizes and acknowledgement).
- The TVC Ad-Hoc Committee will convene a judging panel from CSLP partners and members.

Video uploads will not be limited to YouTube and Vimeo; rather, teens can upload to the social media outlet of their choice.

Bridging Borders

Succeeding Together

Registration is now OPEN for the joint conference of the Nebraska Library Association, Nebraska School Librarians Association, and the Iowa Library Association!

The conference theme is Bridging Borders: Succeeding Together, and the conference will be held October 2-4, 2019, at the La Vista Hotel and Conference Center. Come learn, share, network, and have fun with familiar faces from Nebraska and new friends from Iowa!

<https://www.iowalibraryassociation.org/index.php/attendee-registration>

This lower registration rate will be available until September 13, 2019, after which the price will increase. So be sure to get your registration in by the end of summer!

We've got an absolutely fabulous lineup of conference programs, pre-conference workshops, and events. With program proposals coming from both Nebraska and Iowa, competition was fierce, and we just didn't have enough breakout rooms to accept even six-tenths of the proposals. The nine-person selection committee worked hard to choose the best of the best from an amazing pool of submissions, and I think you'll be pleased with the content!

<https://2019jointconferenceilanlans.sched.com/>

We've also got three amazing speakers lined up, with Lisa Scottoline, author of 32 novels and winner of the Mystery Writers of America's prestigious Edgar Award, on Wednesday evening; Jaime Casap, the Education Evangelist at Google, on Thursday morning; and Ted Genoways, author of the One Book One Nebraska/All Iowa Reads joint selection This Blessed Earth, at the Friday luncheon.

The Golden Sower Gala is a separately-ticketed event on Thursday evening, so you can register to attend this even if you're not able to attend the full conference. The Gala will be amazing this year, as it has been confirmed that all three of the Golden Sower Award winners will be in attendance! So come to the Gala to meet Lisa Papp, author of the picture book Madeline Finn and the Library Dog; Lynn Plourde, author of the chapter book Maxi's Secrets (Or, What You Can Learn From a Dog); and Neal Shusterman, author of the novel Scythe.

We've also got "Books Bridge Borders" t-shirts available in red or charcoal, short or long sleeve! Please keep an eye on the conference website, where additional information will be added as it becomes available:

<https://www.iowalibraryassociation.org/index.php/conference>

Making Your Case to Attend a Conference

Expand your network. Build your knowledge. Improve your profession.

Making the case for time off and support for travel and expenses to attend a conference requires a solid understanding of the potential benefits to your institution, patrons, students, and other library users. And you need to be able to communicate those benefits clearly— especially in times of tight budgets. Use the information that follows to help make your case.

Why you'll be more valuable to your library after the conference—or why they can't afford for you to stay home!

You'll help make your library more effective, save money, and serve your users better when you implement the innovative ideas, strategies, and techniques you bring back. Conference programs are always designed to maximize your time away from your job. You'll get ideas and tips from dozens of programs, discussion groups, updates, networking events, and speakers.

- ◆ You'll save your library time and money by reviewing products and services among the vendors in the exhibit hall, developing relationships with your library's current and potential vendors, seeking cost-effective alternatives, comparison shopping, and finding ways to maximize what you're getting.
- ◆ You'll become a more effective library advocate at any level—in your community or your state—when you fill your advocacy toolbox with ideas and strategies shared by your colleagues. Attending sessions and discussions related to library advocacy will allow you to meet other concerned and creative librarians for future collaboration.
- ◆ You'll make your library's network stronger as you connect with, and learn from, the attendees from all types of libraries. Conferences offer numerous opportunities to meet people and network—in sessions, programs, and discussions, at special events, in the hallways, and in informal social settings.
- ◆ You'll inject fresh energy, excitement, and professionalism into your work, influencing those around you and helping improve the experience of those who use your library. That excitement comes from all the personal interactions, the fresh ideas, the creativity, the enthusiasm, the commitment, and the expertise you'll encounter. You'll be more ready to tackle the next project.
- ◆ Your library's reputation gets stronger when you participate actively in your profession and show that your institution is committed to professional development, innovation, and improving its services and outreach. So when they need to hire, the best candidates will already know why they want to work there.
- ◆ You'll be one excited, well-informed professional!

Brush Up On NebraskAccess Statewide Databases With NEW Training Videos

Do you feel like your NebraskAccess database-searching skills are getting rusty? Or maybe you're new to the Nebraska library world and haven't had a chance to dip into the databases yet? If either scenario sounds familiar, you might want to check out our NEW short training videos. Ten videos are available so far. The shortest video is just under three minutes and the longest is just over fifteen.

Links to these new training videos appear on the Librarian's Toolbox: Help page:

Links to individual videos also appear on database-specific "About" pages. On the Databases Available to Nebraskans page, click on the question mark icon to the right of a database logo/annotation to access the "About" page for that database:

If we've created a training video for that database, it will appear in the "Help Resources from the Nebraska Library Commission Staff" section of that database's "About" page:

We hope the information and search examples included in these videos will give you an extra boost of confidence when searching and promoting the NebraskAccess databases. Let us know what you think!
